Annual Lincoln relay event raises more than $100,000

Music from the 1980's, children playing games and friendly chatter could all be heard Friday night at the Lincoln County fair grounds in celebration of Relay for Life.

Hundreds gathered to celebrate the 30th Anniversary of Relay For Life, which debuted in 1985. Gordy Klatt started Relay for Life in Tacoma, Washington to help raise money for the fight against cancer, according to the American Cancer Society website.

A total of twenty-seven teams gathered to help raise money for the cause. Team members participated in games such as limbo, a floppy hat decorating contest and a "gag me with a spoon" relay.

Despite all the fun and games, the fairgrounds came to a somber hush as the welcoming ceremony began. Everyone's atten-

Stanford Mayor's goal for coming fiscal year

City council approves first reading of 2015-16 budget

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD — Mayor Eddie Carter told city Council members his goal for the coming fiscal year is to have "no surprises."

Council members approved a first reading of the city's $2.6 million budget for the coming year during the June 4 monthly meeting.

Total estimated revenues and total estimated appropriations are both projected to be $2,599,825.

Before the vote, Carter reviewed what he described as a "conservative" budget proposal and said he has tried to estimate revenues and expenses to ensure the city doesn't have any surprises.

"There are only a few noteworthy features in the proposed budget," Carter said.

Policy updates and future savings

Carter said the city has been penalized for the last seven to eight years due to an outdated 1987 personnel policy.

"They would charge us extra, every year a penalty of $2,700 on the personnel policy, I think, and $800 or more on the safety manual," Carter said. "All we had to do is update the safety manual and we're going to save a lot of money like $3,400 to $4,000."

Carter said himself, along with city council members, Police Chief Zach Middleton and Fire Chief Scott Maples have recently spent time in training to update the safety manual.

"We spent hours and hours of training, with the chiefs and myself, the city clerks had a separate training," he said. "This is more than just changing a few deals. This safety manual — we went through many hours of training.

Arizona fugitive wanted since 1983 arrested in Lincoln County

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD — An Arizona man wanted for numerous theft charges in 1983 was arrested by Lincoln County Sheriff's Office deputies on Monday.

Darrell Bullock, 51, has been working in the state of Kentucky for about 20 years, according to Lincoln County Sheriff Curt Folger.

Bullock

Bullock was arrested at about 3:30 p.m. on Monday after Lincoln County Sheriff's Office received information from law enforcement in Cochise County, Arizona that the the parole violator was living in Lincoln County.

Folger said after a short investigation deputies determined Bullock was an employee of Highway 150 Auto Sales in Stanford.

Bullock was working at the time of the arrest and employers were unaware of his criminal background, Folger said.

Bullock was wanted in Arizona for parole violation and a list of charges dating back to 1983 including the theft of four vehicles and numerous other items such as radios, Folger said.

The warrant given to Lincoln County Sheriff's Office confirms that Bullock will be extradited by Arizona law enforcement but Folger said he does not know how long it will take.

Bullock will remain in the Lincoln County Regional Jail until the extradition process is complete.

Submerged boat resurfaces in Cedar Creek Lake; vessel has been intentionally sunk

By Abigail Whitehouse

CRAB ORCHARD — Lincoln County Emergency Management Agency was on scene at Cedar Creek Lake Monday night where a submerged boat registered to an Ohio man resurfaced.

The boat was reported by a passerby, according to Don Gilliam, director of Lincoln County emergency management agency.

Divers were on scene at the state fishing lake as of 8:40 p.m. along with Kentucky Fish and Wildlife responders.

"Nothing (was) reported earlier to 911," Gilliam said.

After further investigation Gilliam said it was obvious that the boat had been intentionally sunk.

"Who knows why," he said. "Our first guess was that it might've been stolen but it's not reported stolen."

Investigators did identify the owner of the boat but could not release his name.

Ky. Fish and Wildlife are still attempting to locate the man with the help of Ohio authorities.

"They've secured the boat on shore," Gilliam said. "They didn't pull it completely out, its still in the water. But there's enough of it out that they were able to secure it and keep it from going back in the water."

Gilliam said he estimates the fiberglass fishing boat is about 16-feet-long.

"It didn't have any seats, no motor, no steering wheel or anything. It had obviously been junked and probably just sunk to get rid of," he said. "The big question is, do you bring a boat all the way from Ohio to get rid of it?"

Devotion to dogs: Lincoln Animal Shelter volunteers dedicate free time to saving strays

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – The Lincoln County Animal Shelter managed to save 90 to 95 percent of the animals brought in last year, largely due to the help of volunteers and one volunteer in particular – Kisha Buis.

A professional photographer by day, Buis spends many of her evening and spare hours taking photographs of dogs held at Lincoln Animal Shelter and uploading those photos to social media, in an effort to quickly spread the word.

For three years, Buis has been taking and posting pictures, arranging rescues and transports, often transporting dogs herself on the weekends and ultimately saving the lives of many who might otherwise have faced euthanasia.

Arranging rescues for shelter dogs is a big part of Buis' volunteerism.

"The majority of our rescues are up north like in Minnesota and Canada. They pay for all of their vetting – spaying, neutering, heart worm testing, de-worming, flea and trick treatment," Buis said.

Once vetting is complete, the dog is taken to a foster home for a few weeks until it can be transported. If a foster can't be found, the dog is brought back to the shelter and remains at-risk, Buis said.

Transports are typically split into several legs with multiple volunteers driving different portions and Buis spends most Saturdays transporting dogs from Lincoln to Louisville, where the next driver waits.

Although Buis works hard to keep foster and rescue numbers relatively high, the number of animals adopted from the shelter remains low.

"I don't know that many people are even aware of this shelter," Buis said. "The majority of people who come out here are wanting (dogs for) free."

Adoption fees for male dogs is $60, which includes neutering, rabies shots and a county license and $70 for females, which includes spaying, as well as the rabies shot and county license. If a dog has already been spayed or neutered the shelter only charges a $5 licensing fee, which is something that somewhat worries Buis.

"From the rescue standpoint, if these people can't afford to pay a $60 adoption fee, what are they going to do with this dog they're only paying $5 for?" She said.

Animal Control Officer David Snider took over the shelter about a year-and-a-half ago and works closely with Buis and volunteers – all of whom share the same goal of saving the animals currently in their care.

While volunteers are always welcome at the shelter, Snider said what they really need is donations.

"It would help a lot if people would make donations of just dog food," Snider said.

After agreeing to take in dogs from Casey County, the shelter's kennel space continues to decrease while the numbers of strays increases.

"We have a lot more dogs," Snider said. "Since February, we've gotten 60 dogs from Casey County. Since January we've probably gotten around 300 dogs from Lincoln."

Drop-offs on the side of the road and owner-surrendering are two common cases the shelter encounters.

Last year the shelter handled about 600 dogs total and Snider predicts they will see 200 more this year.

Despite the county's seven-day holding rule – meaning animals are only guaranteed seven days of boarding – Snider said if space is available then he will hold animals as long as he can.

"I can't save them all, wish I could," he said.

Judge-Executive Jim Adams and Lincoln County Fiscal Court continue to support the shelter 100 percent, Snider said, and the majority of dogs that were euthanized last year was because they were sick or aggressive, not due to lack of space.

Snider and Buis agreed no one at the shelter wants to see an animal euthanized.

"Whenever (a dog) gets put down, it's never easy," Buis said. "But if no one is here doing this then they really are going to die. So you just give it everything you've got."

SO YOU KNOW:

The Lincoln County Animal Shelter is located at 341 Workhouse Road in Stanford, beside Lincoln County Ready Mix.

Hours of operation are Mondays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.

The shelter accepts all donations.

All adoptions are done by the shelter, but rescues go through volunteers who can be contacted by email at LCASRescueinfo@yahoo.com

Information and photos of animals available for adoption or rescue can be found on Facebook at the Friends of Lincoln County Animal Shelter community page.

Those who would like to make monetary donations to the emergency veterinary fund can call the Animal Care Center at (606) 365-7660. Dog food, puppy pads and crates are also needed and accepted as donations.

STANFORD NAZARENE CHURCH NEWS

By Buford Edwards II

Our mission at Stanford Nazarene Church is to share the gospel message of Jesus Christ to all the world and to be a place of healing and hope to all in need. Come as you are, Jesus will meet you there.

Sunday, June 14 was a blessed time in the Lord as we worshipped and praised the Lord together. Bro. Buford's message Sunday morning was centered around James 1 on the subject of "Putting Our Feet To Our Mouths," as we continued with our series on Evangelism titled, "A City on a Hill."

Services were cancelled Sunday night in order to travel to Bowling Green and take part in the opening service of the 2015 Kentucky District Church of the Nazarene Assembly.

Join us Wednesday nights at 7 p.m. for our "Book Club." We have started a new study in the book of Acts. Come and join us for this time of open discussion and Biblical learning.

The church is working hard on year two of the "Five Year Plan." We are actively raising funds to purchase a church van and pay off the debt on the fellowship hall. If you would like to donate to the cause, you can drop off a donation at any service or even mail in a donation. Just remember to write "Five Year Plan," somewhere (memo field of check or envelope of cash) in order for it to be properly designated.

Mark your summer calendars now! The 2015 Pack the Pew Sunday will be Sunday, June 28, with morning services followed by a fellowship meal. Please consider being with us. The all-time record attendance for the church is 171, we can break it with your help!!

We will be having our 2015 Vacation Bible School on Saturday, July 11. Backyard Ministries will also be providing food and inflatables immediately after the VBS program. VBS will be from 2 to 6 p.m. with commencement from 6 to 7 p.m. Food and drink as well as inflatables will be provided by Backyard Ministries from 7 to 9 p.m.

Monday, July 13 is the next Men's Group meeting. We will be gathering at the Stanford McDonalds at 7 p.m. to meet and fellowship. Come join us.

Are you looking for a home church? There are so many excellent churches in our area it may be hard to find that right "fit." If this describes you, stop by and visit us sometime. On Sunday mornings, we follow the traditional format with Sunday school at 10 a.m. and worship at 11 a.m. On Sunday night, we begin at 6 p.m. and have an open forum for singing and testimony followed by the message by either Bro. Buford or Youth Pastor Dennis Hasty. On the first Sunday night of each month, we devote the entire service to singing and testimonies. Then on Wednesday night, we carve out the 7 p.m. hour to Biblical teaching for adults, youth and children. Adults meet in the sanctuary in an informal setting, children in the Sunday school rooms and the youth alternate between the church and fellowship hall.

What's our dress code? Simply put, there isn't one. Come as you are, we just ask that you wear clothes.

For more information about the church and different activities that are available, visit us on the web at www.stanfordchurchofthenazarene.com, and as always don't forget to "like" us on Facebook. Also, you can contact the church at (606) 365-1260 and leave a message. Pastor Buford or someone else will give you a call back.

Want to see a service? We have established a Youtube channel and all services are posted to the channel and linked to the Facebook page.

The church has an active food assistance program. If you know of anyone or have a need yourself please leave a message at the church.

PLEASANT VIEW BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

By Scena Ann Petrey

Vacation Bible School will conclude on Friday, June 19 with a meal from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. The Bible school met each night Monday - Friday, and everyone enjoyed learning about the Bible, playing games, and, of course, the refreshments.

The choir is working each Wednesday on a special patriotic musical, "I Love This Land" that will be presented on Sunday, July 5.

Charlotte Abel played "When the Roll Is Called up Yonder" on the banjo during the offertory on Sunday, June 14. Following that, the church commissioned a group who will leave Friday to go on a mission trip to Belize. Belize is located in Central America, and while there, they will work in a VBS, minister in the school, and participate in construction projects. A group of 11 people from our church will join a group of Lutherans from Minnesota. Be in prayer for this group as they follow the Lord's direction.

For the past several weeks we have prayed for a people group of the week.

Sunday, we concentrated on the Somali in Somalia whose main religion is Islam;

the fastest growing religion in the world. Christina led the congregation in a prayer time that these unreached people would open their minds and hearts to Jesus.

Bro. Kyle completed his series of messages on the 10 commandments with "Do not covet" taken from Ex. 20:17 and Phil. 4:10-13.

Coveting is seeing something not yours, desiring it, and wanting to have it whatever it takes. While the other commandments actually have visible means of breaking the law, coveting is done internally. The root of coveting, as explained by Bro. Kyle, is not being grateful to God for what He has given us.

The opposite of coveting is contentment. Bro. Kyle went to Philippians 4:10-13 to illustrate Paul's outlook on life. Paul was born Saul and was a Pharisee. He was very zealous about the Law and did everything he could to stop the good news of Jesus Christ. One day on the road to Damascus, however, his life was changed forever when he came face to face with Jesus. He became a missionary to the Gentiles and a church planter.

Paul taught us to be content and joy in the circumstances we find ourselves. Contentment does not come naturally; it is something we have to learn. Fixing our eyes on Jesus will instill a contentment within us – where we are and with what we have.

Everything we are is through Jesus. Bro. Kyle invited us to pray, "Lord, teach me to be content."

Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) is a disorder that is much more serious than we realize. Rebecca Carnell will be at the church speaking to the WMU Christ Followers on this topic Monday, June 22 at 6:30 p.m. Everyone is invited to come and learn how we can help family members or friends who may be suffering from this.

The senior luncheon will be Wednesday, June 24 at 11:30 a.m. It will be potluck style. Come and enjoy a great time of fellowship.

Worship on Wednesdays (WOW) begins June 24 for K – 6th grade from 7 to 8 p.m. "Water Night" will be our first event. See Stacy for more details.

Thought for the week: "No matter what your past has been, your future is spotless."

Starting from scratch: Lincoln Superintendent presents board, public with clear fire recovery process

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – Lincoln Superintendent Karen Hatter began what turned out to be a three-hour-long school board meeting with a brief monologue detailing her role in the district’s fire recovery process and tough decisions the board has faced over the past year.

Establish the need and set the vision – that was the main goal of the meeting held Thursday night.

Hatter walked the board and others in attendance through the entire situation, beginning with the Aug. 2014 fire on Danville Avenue, and highlighted each of the major decisions made by the board up to present day.

“In the fire we lost a building and all of it’s contents. Additionally, the fire caused us to lose our efficiency as a district,” Hatter said. “During this past school year we’ve been faced with the challenge of running our programs as usual but we had the added challenged of making highly complex decisions because we were displaced by the fire.”

Hatter said the process takes time to understand and its the school district’s responsibility to carefully consider the impact of every decision made.

“I understand that my role as superintendent is to lead the board to make a decision that best meets our needs and to identify and act on opportunities for improvement that have arisen from the reality of the fire,” she said. “It is the board’s role and duty to make that decision.”

After the recent reversal of a vote to build a new central office, the board is back to considering up to eight different fire recovery options.

In an effort to unify and move forward with the recovery, Hatter discussed key decisions that the board now has to make in order to move forward – agree upon needs and goals and whether to rebuild, replace or negotiate with the insurance company for a “cash out” settlement.

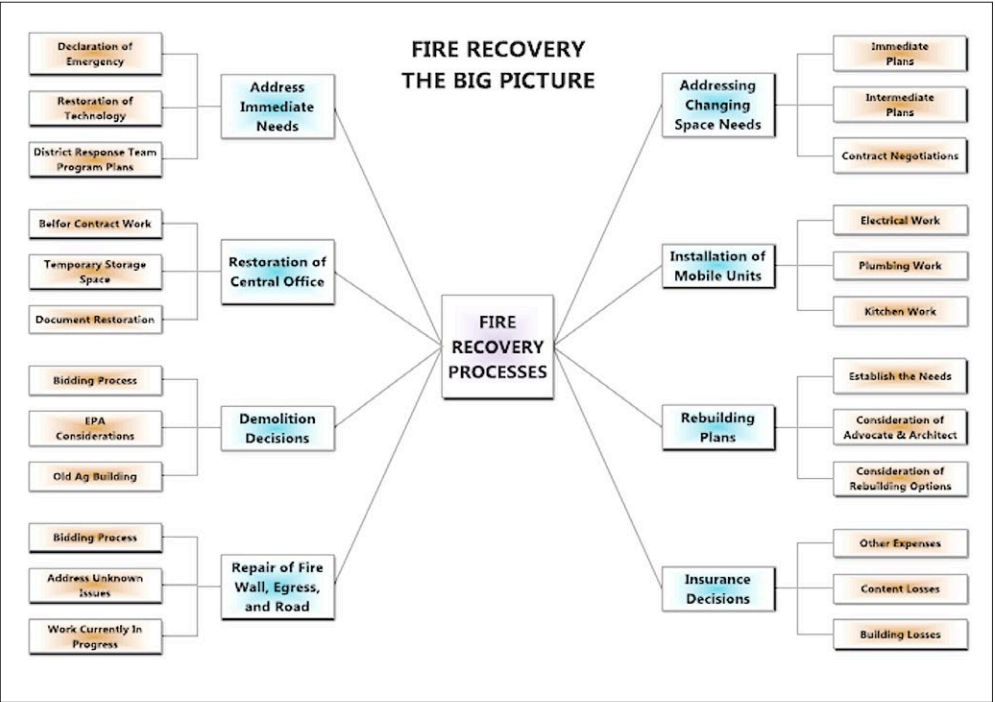

Identifying needs and goals
Hatter distributed an “assessment of needs and opportunities for improvement” handout to everyone at the meeting and determined specific recovery goals using input from board members, district staff and general public in attendance.

“When we’re working on our recovery and rebuilding plan we don’t want to leave any part out. We have to address everybody that lost space. That’s the only right thing to do,” Hatter said.

Technology Coordinator Darren Yaden said the total amount of space lost in the fire was 29,000 square feet.

The assessment handout reads “the overall vision for fire recovery projects is to reach completion by Feb. 2017, in ways that meet or exceed what was lost for the technology programs, early childhood programs, school health program, Fort Logan kitchen and cafeteria and all storage areas, and in ways that optimizes opportunities for improvement of district facilities, resulting in the return to efficient operations of affected programs for the sake of our students.”

All in attendance agreed priorities include finding a permanent location for technology as soon as possible as well as permanent homes for all other areas that were put out by the fire. Additionally, the group agreed placing Stanford Elementary preschool students at the elementary school location is an opportunity for improvement.

The majority of the room agreed that a creating a bigger board meeting room isn’t an immediate priority and the board’s need for space can be resolved by traveling to larger, available venues when necessary.

“i think it would be nice to travel to the different schools so that we’re in the building and we see what’s going on, if there’s needs,” said board member Theresa Wilson.

Expanding the cafeteria at Stanford Elementary and including a loading dock for shipping and receiving in the technology area were both determined as opportunities for improvement to consider as plans move forward.

“Technology has specifically requested this because they have had worker comp. claims due to lifting heavy boxes out of trucks and taking them into buildings,” Hatter said.

Board support team

Before figures can be given and negotiations can begin, Hatter said a support team of experts must be in place to help the board move forward in the decision making process.

“To me, this is a critical piece in establishing that dollar amount,” Hatter said.

The board support team consists of an architect and engineer from the previously approved firm Sherman Carter Barnhart, a commercial real estate broker, a project manager, er, school board attorney and superintendent.

“These people will gather information to give to the board so they can make a good decision,” Hatter said.

The broker will evaluate possible sites and help the board narrow possibilities based on the district’s needs. Once estimated costs are determined the board can compare the short list of options as well as new construction ideas and come to a decision.

“All of these involve KDE (Kentucky Department of Education) procedural steps,” Hatter said.

The goal is to accomplish all of this by February of 2017.

“My recommendation is that we try to follow this process,” Hatter said. “There’s flexibility in this process but we need our team of experts to help us.”

Eric Loy, a representative of Sherman Carter Barnhart said he believes the board would make the best decision following the thorough course of action laid out by the superintendent.

Clearing the confusion

Specific building plans were not discussed during the June 11 meeting but questions arose as to why the board took action to build a new central office when they didn’t have the information they say they needed to make the decision.

“We’ve heard so many plans and we have to come back month to month and try to keep that in your head and things change in the meantime. But what she’s (Hatter) done tonight, as far as I’m concerned, is give me more insight on what’s going on than all of the meetings we’ve had. We’ve got a direction to go,” said board member Marvin Wilson.

Hatter said the complicated nature of the situation is why she wanted to go through the overview of the process.

“We have to have good information to make a decision and I think we’ve had some bad information. I apologize for my part in that. I don’t know where the steps got messed up but I see clearly the process right now. I consulted an expert to help me get that vision clear,” she said.

Board members approved the proposed process and agreed the information given at the meeting was what they have needed all along.

“I think its obvious we should have had it two months ago, we’ve been chasing rabbits,” said board member Denny Hogue.

“Year of the Woman Veteran” Steele speaks out about service, stereotypes

By Kayla Lasure
klasure@centrallynews.com

Many might be surprised to learn that 2015 was officially named the “Year of the Woman Veteran” by Gov. Steve Beshear and the Kentucky Department of Veteran Affairs in Dec. of last year.

Hope Steele, 39 of Harrodsburg, said she was surprised she hadn’t heard anything about the announcement, considering she is a female veteran.

Starting in 1995, Steele served two years in the U.S. Active Army, which included one tour to Korea. However, she admits the military was not her first career choice.

“In high school and even after high school I always said ‘I don’t know what I want to do, but I know I don’t want to join the military,’” Steele said.

Steele was working at a Dairy Queen in Harrodsburg with a coworker who was in the Army when an Army recruiter came into the store one day to talk with the coworker – just as Steele was going on her break.

“He asked if I would sit and talk with him for a second,” Steele said. “I stood there and thought, ‘Oh boy, he thinks he’s going to talk me into the Army. This should be good.’”

The recruiter was somehow able to persuade Steele and she later enlisted into the United States Army, which sent her to Fort Jackson, South Carolina for 14 weeks for Basic Training and Advanced Individual Training. Steele began training in August and when she finished in December, Steele left for Fort Red Cloud, Korea.

Steele trained for a position in personnel records where she said she did human resources type tasks by maintaining paper work and keeping track of what soldiers went to which units.

“Everyone else I went over there with ended up in the Personnel battalion,” she said. “They called out all of these names and then said ‘Everyone else who’s left, you’re going to the 2nd Infantry division.’”

Infantry soldiers are the main combat force of the Army, so Steele said she was really confused when she was assigned to this division after being trained in personnel records.

Steele ended up working in the strength management office for the 2nd Infantry division, which was in charge of assigning soldiers entering Korea to different units in the division.

“It took me a while to figure how I got assigned to (2nd infantry), but they eventually let it slip,” Steele said. “The people in the unit asked to have the next single, white female sent their way, because that’s what they wanted.”

The male-to-female ratio of soldiers in Korea was almost 10-to-one, Steele said. It was a standing joke among soldiers that all men were TDY, meaning Temporarily Divorced for a Year. Steele said she saw it happen a lot, but there were some men who didn’t take part in that behavior.

While in Korea, Steele met Specialist John Gregory, who worked in the office across from her. The two started dating in February 1996 and married the following August.

“It doesn’t sound that long to be dating, but we saw each other every single day,” Steele said. “It felt like twice as long because we knew more about each other rather than if we had just went out on dates on weekends or saw each other a couples times a week.”

Three months into Steele’s time in Korea, the division commander decided that they needed to do something to boost morale. So the commander created a soldier’s chorus and asked his first sergeants to find people in the division who could sing well. Gregory mentioned Steele could sing, and she was asked to visit the first sergeant’s office to sing a few lines of the “Star Spangled Banner.”

After another audition, Steele was one of two females who made it into the 20-member chorus. The rest of her time in Korea was spent performing with the chorus as an attachment of the Army band. The chorus performed for different units and held concerts for civilian events in Korea.

On days the group didn’t have practice or a performance, Steele was assigned to work in another personnel position, since she was the only soldier from personnel in the chorus. She worked with one other person in her office, a male staff sergeant, who made Steele’s time in Korea a little less than comfortable.

“He said some things and made some advances that made me extremely uncomfortable,” Steele said. “I never said anything about it because I thought maybe it was just me, maybe it was nothing.”

A month before Steele was done with her time in Korea, a new woman joined the chorus. After one of the performances, the woman asked Steele if the same staff sergeant had ever made her uncomfortable. The woman told Steel she had an incident with the same man when he refused to leave her room after delivering a message. Steele urged the other woman to press charges against the man, which she did, but never heard back about the results.

“Things like that are wrong and I should have reported it in the first place, but since I didn’t I’m glad someone else did,” Steele said. “As women, we just get to thinking, ‘Well I’m supposed to just handle this. I’m not supposed to say anything.’ But if you don’t, like I didn’t, it could happen to someone else, like it did to her.”

After Korea, Steele and Gregory were stationed back in the states at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, but after only 11 months of marriage, Steele asked for a divorce.

“What went wrong was when we got back to the states, people act differently overseas than they do when they’re back around the comforts of home” she said. “Getting back to the states was like a culture shock all over again. My divorce was the reason why I ended up getting out of the Army.”

Steele was given two options: stay where she was for a year or get sent back overseas. She didn’t want to stay in Oklahoma and didn’t want to go back overseas since she had just come back from Korea. So Steele decided to make a third option.

“I was already on the Army’s weight control program, because I’ve always struggled with my weight all my life,” Steele said. “I said ‘Well, its an honorable discharge if I fail to meet the weight standards within the certain time period they gave me.’ So that’s the option that I took. I didn’t really want to get out, but there was no way I could survive the atmosphere I was in.”

After leaving the Army, Steele moved back home but continued to struggle with the memory of issues she had faced in Korea. She started attending sessions at a veteran’s center in Lexington where she continued to have trouble opening up and talking about her experiences.

After going to the center for a while, Steele started seeing Carla Loveless-Tackett once a week to discuss issues she continued to face. Loveless-Tackett has since opened the Lincoln County Veteran’s Outreach Center in Stanford, and Steele visits Carla once every couple of weeks. Steele said at first she didn’t know there were services out there to help veterans.

“People need to be aware that the services are here and that it won’t get any better if they don’t deal with their issues and talk about it,” Steele said.

Steele said it’s upsetting that people don’t often picture women when they think about veterans.

“Most of the time, when people think of veterans they think of an older man, who was in World War II or Vietnam, who’s wearing a baseball cap that says veteran on it,” Steele said. “Don’t make assumptions of what you think a veteran should or shouldn’t be, or how they should or shouldn’t look.”

Steele said she has witnessed the same misconception many times – when a man and woman are together and people assume that the man is the veteran.

A recent example was when Steele attended the Armed Forces Day Celebration in Stanford and brought her male friend who is restricted to a wheelchair due to cerebral palsy to the ceremony with her.

“You couldn’t believe how many people thanked him for his services because we were at a veteran’s event,” Steele said. “Even when I signed in, I was asking about the blank on the paper where it asks how many guests. I asked if that meant the veteran and the guest. They said it was the veteran and the guest so, ‘you’d count him and you’d add you in with him,’ thinking I was the guest. I said ‘oh no, I’m the veteran.’”

Despite it all, Steele said she doesn’t regret joining the Army, and wishes she could have stayed in longer than she did.

For the last 15 years, Steele has worked in production services with the Commonwealth of Technology and today she continues to visit the Lincoln County Veteran’s Outreach Center in Stanford.

Safety check

Alphanso Miller, the Health Department Prepartdness Coordinator, assists with the department’s first car seat safety check program Wednesday, June 10. Miller is checking the belts and overall safety of the car seats in Cindi Mumper’s car, which she uses when transporting her 16-month-old granddaughter. Mumper said coming to the safety check was worth the trip as Miller found her rear-facing car seat was too loose and she wanted to make sure it was installed properly.

HIGHLAND UNITED METHODIST CHURCH NEWS

On Sunday June 14, the Lord gave us another nice summer morning at Highland UMC. Before services began the announcements were: no fellowship meal after church next Sunday because many people go out to eat lunch on Father’s Day; Bro. Quentin is preaching on marriage next Sunday and the upcoming Supreme Court’s decision of what a marriage is; there is donated literature downstairs that anyone can take home to keep or return for others to read.

Special music was a solo by Doris Scillely. She sang “Three Old Rusty Nails,” one of the congregation’s favorite songs by Doris. Before singing, she told the church why she had been convicted to choose this song. Her late husband and our former pastor, Rev. Don Scillely, was remembered at the Annual United Methodist Conference last week. His family attended the remembrance. Bro. Don loved his little church at Highland. This was the first church he pastored, and after retiring he was honored to come back as our pastor. This church is also where he preached his last sermon. Our little white church was built through the dedication, faith, sweat, and love of our parents, grandparents, and great-grandparents. All churches in our area used to be little white churches, but most have chosen to build new, larger brick churches. Not Highland. We love our little church just the way it is. Just as our church still stands, the Church that Jesus built is still standing strong. The chorus of the song is:

And this church is still standing and it will never fall. Blood stained its foundation and faith put up its walls. Though the world may come against it they will not prevail. He built this church on a rugged cross with three old rusty nails.

Prayer concerns added this week are: Ann Shelton-Ison (cancer), Steve and Rhonda Strawzell (Steve cancer and Rhonda’s father in rest home after heart attacks and strokes), Jean Walker (cancer), and special prayer for all foster parents. Children’s lives are changed for the better because of Christian foster parents who teach them about Jesus, take them to church, and offer them love and care. To keep current on the written prayer list available each Sunday, please inform Rev. Scholtz at (859) 319-3416 or Karen Davis at (606) 669-2562 of who you would like our church to pray for.

Next Wednesday night will be the last session of Bro. Quentin’s couple’s study, “Psychology of Unbelief,” at the home of Rebecca and Chaz Garcia beginning at 7 p.m. This is not a continuing study from the week before so anyone can join this last session.

At the same hour on Wednesday, Becky Scholtz is leading a study at the church for others who would like to study the Methodist Heritage and Faith. Each class lasts about one hour. Even if you are not a member of Highland UMC, you are invited and encouraged to join us. If you would like more information on these studies, Rev. Scholtz can be reached at (859) 319-3416. Or contact Becky, Rebecca, or Chaz.

Rev. Quentin’s sermon this weekend was titled “Reality Within the Mystery: The Trinity.” He read from Matthew 3:12-17; 28:18-20. The word “trinity” is not in the Bible. Bro. Quentin wanted to help us understand the Holy Trinity: Father-Son-Holy Spirit. He believes that God did not want to be one-dimensional. He wanted a personal relationship with you and me so He sent Jesus. Jesus gave us the Holy Spirit. The world began as one God, with the Spirit hovering over, the Word was spoken, the Word was made flesh in Jesus Christ. When Jesus was baptized, God was not one-dimensional. The Heaven opened up and the Spirit of God (the Holy Spirit) descended like a dove. Jesus tells us to go baptize in the name of God, the Father, Son, and the Holy Spirit-the Trinity. God is not just one person. We have access to the Father through the power of the Holy Spirit, given to us by Jesus Christ. We must know all three. Then, we can feel the Spirit within us, hear the Word of God, and feel Jesus’ embrace. Bro. Q pointed out that God was the very first small group, the original family, consisting of the Trinity. No one is meant to be alone. Even if not married, we have our church family and community of believers for encouragement and support. Even in Heaven, we will all be a family.

Come join our family next week as we gather to show our love, encouragement, and support for each other. Sunday school is at 10 a.m. and worship at 11 a.m. All are welcome at the little white church beside the road.

SARA’S NOTES

By Sara Givens

The South District Convention will be held in Perryville, Ky. hosted by Rev. Gerry Hearn and congregation June 16-18 at 9 a.m. for registration. Elder Jerry Wilkinson is the district moderator. The theme preacher will be Rev. Michael Smith of the First Baptist Church, Bardstown.

Crab Orchard Alumni Association honors 1965 graduates

By Nancy Leedy

STANFORD — Crab Orchard High's Class of 1965 reconnected with classmates Saturday evening to celebrate its Golden Reunion during the annual Crab Orchard High School Alumni Association banquet.

Crab Orchard closed its doors in 1974 as the county schools consolidated into Lincoln County High School. However, the memories of the school and its students live on, and have been relived at each alumni banquet.

Jean Brown, president of the Alumni Association, presided over the banquet held at LCHS, assisted by Colleen Reynolds, vice-president, Regina Dailey, secretary/treasurer, and June Roundtree, banquet chair.

While the Alumni Association banquet is a reunion for all former Crab Orchard students and staff, a select few are singled out each year for special recognition. Those honored guests at this year's banquet were the graduates of 1965.

The 50th anniversary class had 11 members on hand from the original class roll of 49. Those on hand to be honored were: Jim Calloway, Sharon Brown Gentry, Billy Griffin, Judy Kidd Hester, Jimmy Wayne Howard, Phyllis Kirby Lee, Linda Eaton McClendon, Diane Smith Messer, Janice Fletcher Southard, Joyce Sebastian Thompson and Larry Todd.

Each of the 1965 graduates on hand for the occasion was presented with a plaque commemorating the golden anniversary.

The Class of 1965 has lost 10 members with Kenny Ball, Sandra Duvall Davidson, Robert Edwards, Libbie Martin Gilbert, Gerald Hammons, Kenneth Hammons, Gary Ledford, Warren Naylor, Freddy Pruitt and Charles Ridder now deceased.

Two students from Crab Orchard who never had the opportunity to attend Crab Orchard High School were also recognized as "honored graduates." On behalf of First Southern National Bank, Kathy Martin, a 1966 Crab Orchard grad, presented the Outstanding Senior Girl and Boy Awards to 2015 Lincoln County High School graduates who would have graduated from Crab Orchard High if it was still in existence.

Sara Johnson and Matt Long were selected as the 2015 Outstanding Seniors. Johnson, the daughter of Daniel and Julie Johnson, plans to attend Morehead State University with the goal of becoming a veterinarian. She also wants to be a translator of Spanish and sign language. Long, the son of Anthony and Sherry Long, plans to attend Eastern Kentucky University but is undecided on what his major field of study will be. However, he does know that he plans to be involved in chorus and band.

The final award presented during the evening was bestowed upon a graduate who has exhibited distinguished and meritorious service to their community, their profession, and to society in general, in particular to Crab Orchard High School and its Alumni Association.

Clara Collier Boyle, a member of the 1941 graduating class, was named as the 2015 Distinguished Alumnus for her unselfish service to her community and her school and her continued support of the Alumni Association.

THE MEMBERS OF the Crab Orchard High School Class of 1965 on hand for their 50th anniversary reunion were: front row – Sharon Brown Gentry, Joyce Sebastian Thompson, Judy Kidd Hester, Janice Fletcher Southard and Diane Smith Messer; and back row – Billy Griffin, Larry Todd, Linda Eaton McClendon, Phyllis Kirby Lee, Jim Calloway and Jimmy Wayne Howard.

2015 LINCOLN COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL graduates Sara Johnson, left, and Matt Long were named as the recipients of the Crab Orchard Alumni Association Outstanding Senior Girl and Boy Awards during Saturday's banquet. The award is presented annually to a senior girl and boy who would have graduated from Crab Orchard High School if the school was still open.

After marriage, Boyle assisted with farm activities as well as serving as a sales clerk at Morris' Clothing Store. From 1955 through 1986 she managed her own grocery store, and it was during those years that she gave many students their first job. Today, she is still active in taking care of her many rental properties.

Over the years, Boyle has been active in many community organizations. She was a Crab Orchard Business and Professional Women's Club officer, a Lincoln County DAR officer, a member of the Lincoln County Historical Society, a Crab Orchard Homemakers Club officer, a member of the Lincoln County Democratic Club and a Crab Orchard Eastern Star officer. She served on the Crab Orchard Zoning Committee for two years and was an election precinct officer for many years. She is a member of the Crab Orchard Baptist Church and currently attends Crab Orchard Christian Church.

Boyle, who graduated from Crab Orchard High School in 11 years at the age of 16, has one daughter, Janet Wyler Kendrick, who is also a Crab Orchard graduate.

Goldie Goldsmith-Vigneri Productions, featuring Katie and Christina, provided the entertainment for the banquet.

CLARA COLLIER BOYLE, a 1941 graduate of Crab Orchard High School, was named the 2015 Distinguished Alumnus at the former school's annual Alumni Association banquet Saturday evening.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Caretakers of a Kings Mountain cemetery appreciated for hard work

Dear Editor,
I am writing in regards to my son, Donald Stringer. He has been the caretaker for Gooch Cemetery, Green Briar Rd. Kings Mountain, for 23 years and has done an excellent job. He cherishes that cemetery because his “Poppie’s” last request was “Take it over son, I’m almost done.” By Feb. 1993, “Poppie” was gone.

Most of the community knew “Poppie” and “Granny” as Dale and Beulah Stull, who started caring for it in Nov. 1968 when their oldest and beloved grandson was killed in Vietnam. If anyone recalls before then, if you went to decorate, saws, briar scythes and axes went also because you had to chop your way to the graves. But “Poppie” ended that. He worked day and night in snow and ice and cleaned every inch of it so “Ricky” would have a decent resting place. It has been a beautiful sight since.

“Poppie” put 24 years of hard loving labor there and now Donald is doing so also, even though he has chronic leukemia doing chemotherapy for life. He’s in terrible pain but still works 11 hours daily as maintenance at Anderson Sawmill, keeping it put together. He also raises a big garden, helps anyone who needs him and does the caretaking. He’s been battling his disease for three years. He’s the strongest willed person (just like his “Poppie”) that I have seen yet.

I am so very proud of him, as he is the cemetery. So he, I, and all his family want to thank everyone from here and out of state for all of the donations and thank you’s he has received. His eyes light up like sunshine when someone shakes his hand or gives him a hug and brags about what a wonderful and beautiful job he has done over there.

So, once again, thank all of you that have reached into your pockets and helped him to continue the expense and hard work that he has done for the past 23 years.

Thanks to several of his friends and family who have often went and helped when he was under the weather.

God bless and keep all of you safe and happy.

Yours truly and thankful,

Kay Gordon

A powerful influence

By Howard Coop

In the past few months, numerous media reports have called attention to a serious problem.

Across the land, there has been a breakdown of the home, a stabilizing influence in human society for centuries. The result of this breakdown has been catastrophic. It has lead to a moral decline and a dramatic increase in the number of single parent homes where more and more children are being raised without the stabilizing influence of a good father.

This breakdown has had a devastating effect. It has lead to a dramatic increase in juvenile delinquency. However, an anonymous judge in our court system was reported to have said that he could solve the problem of juvenile delinquency with nine words: “Put daddy back at the head of the house” where, as J. Cecil Myers said he “must cooperate in the moral, ethical, (and) spiritual training” of his children if they are to grow up to be responsible adults who make a worthwhile contribution to the society of which they are a part.

Father’s Day is more than a time, once a year, to give dad an ugly tie and mumble a few words that may have little or no meaning. It is a time to recognize the important role that good fathers have in the home. More than sires of sons and daughters, fathers are the guiding influence in the lives of their children that, by what they are and by what they do, shapes the lives of their children and prepare them to live in the real world as responsible adults. Clarence Budington Kelland put it in these words: “He (father) didn’t tell me how to live; he lived and let me watch him do it.” It has become proverbial that, if a child grows up to be responsible, it “needs a man around that he can respect and admire.”

Fathers have a powerful influence. By their absence or by their presence, the influence of fathers impacts in a significant way the lives of their children.

Shake my hand: don’t worry, you won’t hurt me

By Kayla Lasure
klasure@centralkynews.com

Upon meeting someone for the first time, I’ve been taught to shake that person’s hand as a sign of a respectful greeting. Whether the person be male, female, young, old, black, white, or orange - I will almost always shake that person’s hand.

One of my biggest pet peeves is when I go to shake someone’s hand and I receive a limp handshake that tells me upon contact, “since you’re a woman I might hurt you with a normal handshake.”

This might make sense to me if I was a small child or a fairly elderly woman. However, being 20 years old, I feel like I deserve a normal handshake just like any man would receive. Now don’t get me wrong, I don’t expect you to squeeze my hand to the point of pain – just a friendly, normal handshake that shows me that you see me as an equal human being.

To some this may seem ludicrous, to want to be seen on an equal playing field as any male. Some may think that a handshake isn’t that big of a deal and doesn’t determine anything at all. Generations before me may see a softer handshake approach as the more respectful thing to do when greeting a female. However, to me a firm handshake means the person respects me, be it male or female.

I cannot speak for all women, but I know for me the “limp fish” handshake just doesn’t cut it. This is a weak handshake that barely grips the other person’s hand, or merely just shakes the fingertips of the other’s hand. It’s uncomfortable and awkward.

Here are some tips for those of you who aren’t familiar on how to shake hands with a woman:

For some, it may feel more comfortable to let the woman initiate the gesture. This is perfectly fine if you’re not sure how to approach her. However, in almost every business situation, more often than not the woman is okay with a hand-shake. Now smile and offer a firm, full grip handshake. And you’re done! You have now successfully given the woman a proper handshake.

The world’s way of thinking is changing from women being the weaker gender to being of equal stature with men. I don’t expect to be treated like a ‘bro’ in all situations – I still like for men to censor their language when talking to me and I don’t expect you to feel obligated to talk all ‘manly’ topics to me. However, I do expect to be treated with the same regard as someone as the opposite gender; starting with a simple handshake.

So as they say, “put’er there” and meet me halfway with a proper unisex handshake.

Senator Chris Girdler announces he will not seek reelection in 2016

By Chris Girdler
Lincoln County’s State Senator

After over a year of prayerful consideration and conversations with my wife and close friends, I have confidently come to the decision that I will not be seeking reelection in 2016. I have a deep passion for public service and giving back to one’s community. However, Courtney and I are expecting our second daughter in a few weeks and my passion for public service pales in comparison to the love and passion I have for my family and my faith.

It is essential to recognize what you have been called to do for the season of life you are in; it takes honesty, determination and courage to follow through. When you face a situation you know will put you on overload, even if you are willing to pay the price, are you willing to commit your family to pay the price with you?

Chris Girdler

I suggested many times on the campaign trail in 2012 that I did not plan on serving in the Kentucky Senate a lengthy amount of time. I feel I made that abundantly clear when I opted out of the legislative retirement plan upon being sworn in to prove that I was not in the General Assembly for the perks and privileges, but there to do the people’s business, and that is exactly what I have done.

I can say in all modesty that I feel that I have been able to accomplish a lot of things for my home community and region in a short amount of time, especially from a tourism and economic development perspective. People never had to question where I stood on issues as I always followed my convictions and did not worry about political consequences. Whether or not folks agreed with me was not my worry, but I always tried to agree to disagree with love and humility. Now, it is time to let somebody else who has the ability to commit more time to the position take over the seat, and I wanted to announce my not seeking reelection early enough to allow qualified candidates to thoroughly consider the endeavor.

I told many people during my campaign that if they wanted someone who was going to sit on their hands and simply travel to Frankfort to vote yes and no on bills,

I was not their man. But, if they wanted someone who was going to be bold, look for solutions and try to move the community forward, then I felt I was the man for the job.

It has been and continues to be an experience I will always treasure. I have made many friends that will last a lifetime. I’m very much at peace with the decision, and it has been an honor and privilege to serve the great people of my district and the Commonwealth in the Senate.

I will always be involved and encourage others to take part in the political process and community service. I can see myself one day stepping back out to run for an elected office, but in this current season of my life my focus is exactly where it needs to be: with my family, my Christian faith and my business endeavors.

“A truly rich man is one whose children run into his arms when his hands are empty.” ~Author Unknown

For some, Father’s Day is a wonderful time to let your dad know how much you love him. For others, Father’s Day can be a bittersweet day. It can cause those of us who have lost our fathers to death to smile at memories and cry over our loss. For those who do not have their fathers due to abandonment or any other reason, Father’s Day can cause feelings of anger and unworthiness.

This Father’s Day, whether you have your physical father or not, rest in this beautiful truth: “... You received God’s Spirit when he adopted you as his own children. Now we call him, Abba, Father (Rom. 8:15).”

As children of God, we receive the glorious honor of calling the Creator of the Universe our Father. Rest in this truth... Rest in your Father’s arms.

Father’s Day
JUNE 21, 2015

I have the BEST DAD
in the world!

Thanks, Dad!

Nowadays we tend to see most special occasions from a commercial point of view, and Father’s Day is no exception. But during your search for the perfect gift, be sure not to lose sight of the true nature of this day. Father’s Day is a celebration of the most important man in your life and all he gave to his family over the years.

It may be that for you, highlighting Father’s Day is a way to acknowledge the important role your dad has played in your life since the day you leg; I was born with my right femur missing. As soon as he done an X-Ray I could read his face, he was devastated. He knew right away that it was cancer.”

It was determined that Clark had myxoid liposarcoma, a cancerous tumor that grows in fatty tissue. Doctors detected that Clark also had developed kidney cancer.

“The tumor was in the fourth stage and about the size of a large cantaloupe,” Clark said. “My mind was going crazy. How could I become a mother and then be told that I have cancer and I may not live?”

Clark underwent eight weeks of radiation and surgery on her leg, which did not heal as fast as doctors had hoped.

“My doctor told me from the beginning that he wasn’t going to tell me that I couldn’t walk,” she said. “He said, ‘It’s up to you, you’ll walk if you want to walk.’ I had this new baby girl and we ended up walking within a week of each other.”

In 2012, three months after having her third child, Clark had another knot show up on her back. Once again, Clark was told she had myxoid liposarcoma, but in her left flank back muscle. For a second time, she underwent radiation and surgery.

“The radiation left me disfigured and extremely burnt,” Clark said. “But after a few months everything healed up.”

Last April, not even two years after her last battle with cancer, Clark went in for a routine CT scan and doctors found a mutated form of myxoid liposarcoma in her left pelvic region.

“It looked to be attached to a lymph node and a blood vessel,” Clark said. “With the new mutation, treatment was very difficult. Anything would be experimental and chemo was the only answer and hope they could offer me.”

Clark said she has been cancer free since January and thanked God for giving her a third chance.

Nancy Leedy, 55, was the second speaker to share her story of being cancer free for 38 years. Leedy was 17-years-old when she went in to have a goiter removed, only to find out days later she had thyroid cancer that had begun spreading to her rib cage.

“I knew of no complications of my surgery though until my doctor came in, sat down at the foot of my bed and started patting my leg,” Leedy said. “That’s when I was told, ‘You have cancer.’”

Leedy was allowed to go home for two days before checking back into the hospital for treatment. She first went through radioactive iodine treatment and had to have a mixture of liquid iodine.

“I have to say it was scary,” Leedy said. They put me in a big cold room all by myself. The door opens and in walks someone wearing what looks like the suit of an astronaut walking on the moon. In the hands of this moon man was the biggest set of tongs I have ever seen holding a big silver container at the end.”

Leedy was put into isolation where nurses didn’t enter her room to take vitals or draw blood, and meal trays were placed just inside the door for her to retrieve.

“The realization of my treatment set in,” Leedy said. “The loneliness of isolation. During my cancer treatment I was in isolation for several days at a time and wasn’t allowed to have anyone near me within five feet. My parents could only visit for five minutes per day and my siblings were not allowed to visit at all.”

Danville Hospital only recently started a radiation department and was under massive construction, Leedy said. Leedy was unable to even look out of a window.

“I was alone,” Leedy said to the crowd through tears.

When Leedy was finally able to go home, her siblings had to live with her grandparents for a while because of possible residual radiation.

“I remember many meals seated at our big oblong dining room table with me at one end and mom and dad seated side by side at the opposite end,” she said. “I also vividly recall getting out of bed or up from the couch and seeing large clumps of hair that had fallen out. With every treatment it was just more of the same: isolation, loneliness and hair loss.”

Leedy told the crowd about about how high school didn’t produce fond memories for her like it did some of her classmates. She finished out with her senior class and still went though radiation treatments as Freshman at Eastern Kentucky University.

“Just remember tonight at relay, that whether you are battling cancer or you know someone that is, we are all in this together,” she said. “You are saving a life with every step you take.”

The results

With the decision to shorten this year’s event, Relay for Life started at 6 p.m. and continued until 2 a.m. A total of 57 cancer survivors attended the event and participated in the survivor walk wearing their purple shirts and individual medals.

While the Relay for Life committee is still receiving donations, the event raised $100,100, exceeding the set goal by $100. Brake Parts Inc. raised the most money overall with $16,700. Sylvia Leach raised the most money for an individual with $2,169.76. Kendra Smith raised the most money for youth 13 to 18 by collecting $4,033. The family and friends group winner was the team Our Superman who raised $5,583.33. The most money raised from a business was $6,714.53 from PBK Bank. Stanford Christian Church raised the most in the church division with $4,407.95. Lincoln County High School raised the top amount out of the schools by donating $1,223.61. Lincoln County Homemakers raised $1,546.17 out of the non-profit groups. Out of the medical groups, Ephraim McDowell Fort Logan Hospital raised the largest amount with $5,056.41

The Stanford Presbyterian Church won first place for the best campsite with a ‘We Are The World’ theme from the 1985 song by Michael Jackson.

BPI had the most luminaries sold with Lincoln County Homemakers in second place. There was $3,800 total sold in luminaries.

The Relay Royalty tradition was carried over from last year and people in attendance voted on a king, queen, duke, duchess, prince, and princess by donating money in the recipients’ collection jar. The Royalty contest brought in $3,334.40. The winners were; king: Paul Adkins; queen: Sally Lynch; duke: Hunter Smith; duchess: Kendra Smith; prince: Drayden Sweet; princess: Arayah Sweet.

BUDGET

This is very detail-oriented. We’ve worked hard on this. It’s been an effort by everybody here.”

Another area where the city will be able to save money in the upcoming year and years to come is within Kentucky Utilities.

“Failing to respond to a letter from KU in May 2014 has cost our city approximately $7,500 per year in savings,” Carter said. “We get a special rate by being a municipality.”

Savings from the recently approved roof construction and insurance settlement will also be added to the 2015-16 budget but are not reflected as of now but will be added before the second reading.

“As you all well know on the roof we saved about $14,000. We’re getting a check for $6,000,” Carter said.

The roof construction will only cost a total of $42,000.

Carter said since the city has not received the funds for the roof or the KU savings, the budget won’t specifically address those funds for now.

Councilman Scottie Ernst said he’d like to see that money earmarked to repair a wall on the Stanford police and fire building.

“I stopped by and looked at it and it definitely needs to be repaired. The steal beams are rusting and there’s mold,” Ernst said. “If we’re going to spend $46,000 on a roof, we need to spend whatever it takes to get that wall fixed, in my opinion.”

Streets

One area taking a hit in the upcoming budget is municipal aid, which is largely due to low gas prices across the state.

Cuts to municipal aid in the 2015-16 fiscal year are projected to be about $20,500.

“That’s the road money we get from the state every year. With the gas being so low it really hurt us, but we don’t have any control over that,” Carter said.

Carter said the city plans to purchase a new snow plow for an existing truck owned by the city and he believes the total of two snow plows will be able to handle snow removal in the city, aside from unusual amounts of snow like the totals that were seen this past winter.

“If we have a normal winter we should be able to do fine with those vehicles,” Carter said.

Discussion during the council meeting turned toward the maintenance of city streets and the working relationship with county magistrates, implicating a need for more communication.

“I don’t care who you are, we’ve got to communicate with one another,” Carter said.

Councilman Ronnie Deatherage said since the City of Stanford is the county seat and the biggest entity, city council needs to work with fiscal court to address a lot of issues.

In agreement, councilman Dr. Naren James said it disappointed him to see the county had to step in to help the city after large amounts of snow fell this past winter.

“The city’s got to be better than the county. My recommendation to you as mayor is plan some contracts ahead,” James said.

Carter said moving forward with business regarding city streets, he would like to see members of city council and himself travel across the city and prioritize streets in need of repair and determine what action needs to be taken in what order.

The second reading and adoption of the 2015-16 budget has not yet been set.

In other business, the council:

-Addressed recent concerns with the locked gate

on city-owned Rice Lake.

Carter told council members and public in attendance that the issue has been tabled while legal discussions continue.

Councilman James said he wants to make sure the public is aware that the city is addressing the issue.

“In the next few weeks, we’ll come up with an ordinance to address the issue. There are some legal issues they’re looking at, the two attorneys, on the handicap accessibility issues,” Carter said. “This council is going to look at every avenue, they may not be fishermen but they’ll be objective. At some point in the next few weeks we’ll come up with an ordinance on the lake.”

Councilwoman Peggy Hester addressed Stanford Water Commission Chairman Jack Withrow, who was in attendance, and asked him what the legal responsibility of the commission is exactly.

“We’re in charge of operating the water and sewer department and managing on a daily basis,” Withrow said. “We can’t pass an ordinance.”

Carter reiterated the importance of maintaining the quality of drinking water for the city and the council’s determination to come to a reasonable agreement to allow city residents to fish on the lake.

-Heard an update from Carter on construction of the downtown police and fire building roof, which will begin on June 22.

-Authorized the mayor to borrow money on a three-month note to buy Stanford EMS property for $130,000, which will complete the city’s FEMA Flood Plain Grant.

-Appointed Susan Miller and David Horseman to the Board of Ethics. City Council members agreed the city would encourage and require the ethics board to meet at least once a year.

Lincoln Fiscal Court approves swap for new emergency mobile command vehicle

By Abigail Whitehouse

abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – Lincoln County Emergency Management Director Don Gilliam has found a more suitable vehicle to convert into a Mobile Command and Communications Center and Lincoln County Fiscal Court has approved the purchase.

While gathering information and estimates for the conversion of a previously donated 1998 school bus, a better-suited vehicle was discovered, Gilliam told the Lincoln County Fiscal Court on May 26.

The school bus was donated by the Lincoln County School District eight months ago to fill the need for a mobile command and communications center which could have been used in previous situations, he said.

“That was primarily because of the school bus wreck and the confusion that occurred. That would have been greatly alleviated had we had an on-scene mobile command post that could have interacted with the public and media to let these parents know where their kids were taken,” Gilliam told the court.

While talking with people about paint and body work for the school bus, Giliam said he located a 2004 trans-sit van which is somewhat bigger and features front and rear air conditioning as well as a hydraulic lift.

“(That) will be beneficial moving a heavy generator on and off the command post,” Gilliam said. “The biggest thing about the transit van is its ready to go.”

Modifications and repairs to the school bus would take approximately three to four weeks, which would prevent emergency management’s ability from using the new command post at the Lincoln County Fair which begins June 29.

“The problem with the school bus is that’s what it is, a school bus. It will need some modification to be used the way we need to use it and those modifications will run approximately $1,900. I can get this van for $2,000 using the school bus as a trade,” Gilliam said.

The new transit van has already been painted using equipment owned by the emergency management agency and is stocked with grab-and-go-radios which Giliam said can be used until other communication equipment items are added.

Other items such as a printer, fax machine and computer will be used inside the mobile command center in the future.

Lincoln Fiscal Court authorized the surplus of the 1998 school bus during the May 26 meeting and later authorized the trade-in with David Hammonds Classic Cars during the court’s June 9 meeting.

Six indicted by Lincoln grand jury

STANFORD — The following people were indicted recently by a Lincoln County grand jury:

- Charles Hale, 31, of Stanford, allegedly being a persistent felony offender on Jan. 8. Bond was set at $20,000. Stanford officer John Williams testified before the grand jury.
- Alvin E. Padgett Jr., 39, 322 Herndon Ave., four counts of allegedly using electronic means to induce a minor to engage in sexual activities between 2007 and 2011. Bond was set at $50,000. Kentucky State Police Detective Rodney Wren testified.

- Joshua D. Lee, 28, of Corbin, and James E. Lee, 47, and Brandon Lee, 22. both of Keavy, first-degree assault for allegedly causing serious injury to Joseph C. Lyons on May 3, 2013. Bonds were set at $50,000 each. Wren testified.
- Mark Todd, 36, Raymond Todd Road, Crab Orchard, theft more than $500 for allegedly taking property belonging to KSp on May 7, 2013. Bond was set at $20,000. KSP Detective Jason Browning testified.

Lincoln athletes excel at elementary state track meet

By Nancy Leedy

Lincoln County generated some buzz at the KTCCCA Elementary State Track and Field Championships held at North Oldham High School, with 10 individuals and two relay teams going top 6 in 18 different events.

The local athletes put forth some serious competition in the state meet, which was held in conjunction with the USATF Kentucky Association Junior Olympics as over half of those top 6 finishes were third-place or higher. Lincoln claimed two title wins at the meet, six runner-up finishes and five third-place medals.

Caleb Miller, Lucy Singleton, Maddy Slone, Cheyenne Hoseclaw, Jerek Pope, Skylar Long, Clayton Davis, Sam Singleton, Connor Davis and Ein Rousey earned the top 6 individual finishes for Lincoln and the girls' and boys' 400-meter relay teams in the 12-Under age division were both top 6. Only those athletes placing in the top 3 earned medals, but all of the top 6 in each event qualified to compete in the upcoming Region 5 Junior Olympics Meet.

Lincoln's medalists included Caleb Miller, Lucy Singleton, Maddy Slone, Skylar Long, Clayton Davis, Sam Singleton, Ein Rousey and the boys' 12-U 400-meter relay team.

Miller and Lucy Singleton assured themselves of a qualifying spot at the Region 5 Junior Olympics Meet by winning their respective events. Miller sprinted to a first-place finish in the boys' 11-12 100-meter dash in a time of 14.06 seconds, while Singleton was first to the finish in the girls' 11-12 400-meter dash in 1:06.36.

Miller also medaled in the boys' 200-meter dash and as part of Lincoln's 400-meter relay team. His time of 31.32 seconds in the 200 was good enough for second place, and he and running mates Clayton Davis, Connor Davis and Rousey placed third in the relay in 1:04.09.

Singleton earned a second individual medal in the girls' 11-12 800-meter dash with a time of 2:39.66 for second.

Slone was in two of the closest races in the state meet, with just a few hundredths of a second separating her from first place in both the girls' 11-12 100-meter and 200-meter dashes. Her time in the 100 was 14.28 seconds. Stopher's Kamaya Johnson posted the first-place time of 14.23 seconds. In the 200, Slone's time was 31.08 seconds, three-hundredths of a second behind the 31.05 seconds run by Rockcastle County's Allie Martin.

Second place was Lincoln's most popular finish. In addition to Miller's, Singleton's and Slone's seconds, Clayton Davis and Sam Singleton each garnered runner-up finishes. Davis finished second in the boys' 11-12 1500-meter run with a time of 5:19.42 and Sam Singleton was second in the boys' 11-12 800-meter run in 2:45.46. It was a 2-3 finish for Lincoln in the 1500, with Singleton following Davis across in third in 5:21.29. Davis also medaled in the 400-meter dash, placing third in 1:10.03.

Rounding out Lincoln's medalist athletes were Long and Rousey. Long took third in the 8-Under 1500 in a time of 6:27.75 and Rousey scored third in the long jump event with a jump of 10-11.25.

Lincoln's fourth- through sixth-place qualifying performances were, by event:

Boys' 11-12 100: Jerek Pope, 5th, 15.16 seconds.

Girls' 11-12 1500: Cheyenne Hoseclaw, 6th, 6:19.55.

Boys' 9-10 400: Connor Davis, 4th, 1:18.62.

Girls' 12-U 400 relay: Lincoln Co. (Singleton, Desi Lamb, Slone and Hoseclaw), 5th, 1:05.46.

Boys' 11-12 200 Pope, 5th, 34.19 seconds.

Girls' 11-12 Long Jump: Hoseclaw, 6th, 10-00.25.

Kentucky takes proactive response to Avian flu outbreak

State Veterinarian Robert C. Stout has enacted restrictions on bird sales and movement in Kentucky to protect Kentucky’s poultry industry and bird population from the current avian influenza outbreak.

“We are taking these steps out of an abundance of caution,” Dr. Stout said. “Poultry is Kentucky’s leading agricultural commodity, and we will do everything we can to keep our commercial and backyard poultry industries secure.”

The Office of the State Veterinarian (OSV) announced the following actions:

- All avian commingling sales events, including stockyards, flea markets, and swap meets, are banned. Sales of birds will not be allowed at any fair or show. A private sale with direct intrastate farm-to-farm movement is allowed per state regulation 302 KAR 20.065, section 7.
- Entry of birds into Kentucky for sale is restricted to poultry from facilities certified by the National Poultry Improvement Plan (NPIP) as free of H5 or H7 viruses. Entry from certified H5/H7-clean facilities within a state with highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) infections must meet Kentucky regulatory requirements. Entry from facilities within an HPAI control zone is banned.

- Entry of poultry into Kentucky for private sale or movement must be permitted by the Office of the State Veterinarian and will be considered on a case-by-case basis.
- Game bird permit applications must originate from an NPIP-certified H5/H7-clean facility that meets the requirements of the OSV’s poultry restrictions memo. Persons seeking a game bird permit also must obtain a transportation permit from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.
- Exhibition events, shows, and fairs will be restricted to in-state birds only. No out-of-state birds will be allowed into Kentucky for exhibition purposes. All birds presented for exhibition shall be subject to inspection by Kentucky Department of Agriculture personnel.

The Office of the State Veterinarian, an agency of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, works with the University of Kentucky, USDA, other government agencies, private veterinary practitioners, and producers to prevent and eradicate disease in Kentucky livestock and poultry.

Dr. Stout encouraged poultry producers and all other bird owners to take biosecurity measures to prevent their birds from being infected with avian influenza or other bird diseases:

- Keep your distance – Isolate your birds from visitors and other birds.
- Keep it clean – Prevent germs from spreading by cleaning shoes, tools and equipment.
- Don’t haul disease home – Clean vehicles and cages.
- Don’t borrow from your neighbor – Avoid sharing tools and equipment with neighbors.
- Know the signs – Watch for early signs to prevent the spread of disease
- Report sick birds – Report unusual signs of disease or unexpected deaths to the Office of the Kentucky State Veterinarian at (502) 573-0282, option 3, or through USDA’s toll-free number at 1-866-536-7593.

In late April, the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Animal and Plant Health

Inspection Service confirmed the presence of highly pathogenic H5N2 avian influenza in two wild birds in McCracken County. There have been no detections in domestic flocks in Kentucky.

Avian influenza has been reported in 21 states since last December, and approximately 50 million birds have been affected, including about 29.1 million in Iowa alone.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention considers the risk to humans from the HPAI viruses in the current outbreak to be low. No human HPAI infections have been detected in the United States to date.

Kentucky’s poultry industry generated an estimated $1.2 billion in farm cash receipts in 2013, the Kentucky office of the National Agricultural Statistics Service reported. Kentucky farmers produced 309 million broilers and more than 1.1 billion eggs in 2013.

Kentucky entry requirements are listed on the OSV website at <http://www.kyagr.com/statevet/import-poultry-ratites.html>. For more biosecurity tips and other information about avian influenza, go to <http://healthybirds.aphis.usda.gov/>.

FARM FACTS

Producers should pay attention to cows and bulls now

As Kentucky moves into the middle of the beef cattle breeding season, producers should pay attention to cow herd fertility. Cow herd fertility can greatly enhance the profit margins for cow-calf producers.

Cows that likely will make the most money are those that have a calf every year and breed back early in the breeding season. Getting cows bred early in the breeding season is very important in regard to calf profits. Cows bred in early May, calve in February. Calves that come in February will generally be the biggest calves you sell in the fall or early winter. There is a simple reason why that is true. The reason is they are older. If a cow goes through three heat cycles before she gets with calf, that means you get an April calf, which will be a lot smaller at the October weaning than that February calf. A few cows getting bred late can cost you a lot of money. That’s why it is important to work on beef herd fertility and breeding program management. Anything producers can do to get a better understanding of their herd’s fertility status will aid in selection for improved fertility traits.

U.K. recommends several steps for producers to follow to improve the breeding management of their cow herds:

- keep breeding records, including dates bred and show of estrus by the cows. Use a pocket notebook or use one of our U.K.-beef calendars to record breeding dates.
- From the breeding records and observed heat periods, calculate the next expected show of heat and watch to see if that cow is back in heat or not. This will help you find out if you have a problem with a bull or the cows or their environment.
- Avoid fat or thin cows by having an adequate feeding program because the breeding season is the period of highest nutritional requirements for cows.
- Let cows have access to your best pastures during breeding season. Pastures with a good deal of clover or alfalfa work the best. Pure fescue pastures are the worst pasture to get cows bred on. If that is all you have, then make sure those pastures have been clipped so they are more leafy and making fresh blade growth. Some producers feed a little grain two weeks prior to and during the breeding season and have increased cow fertility and early breeding. Feeding three lbs. of grain per day has shown a good increase in getting cows bred quickly.
- Make sure to have a free choice beef mineral available at all times. Some companies have special mineral mixes for the breeding period. They are more expensive but getting cows bred quick will pay off.
- Provide plenty of shade and fresh water to cows and bulls during the breeding season. Usually this time corresponds to some of our hottest weather, and under heat stress fertility will suffer. Getting cows bred under heat stress is tough. Anything you can do to relive heat stress helps.
- Fertility can be improved in the cow herd through the selection of bulls with high fertility potential.
- Do not overuse bulls. Recommended ratios: one yearling bull up to 15 cows; one mature bull up to 30 cows.

Enrollment open for ARC and PLC programs

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Secretary Tom Vilsack announced that eligible producers may now formally enroll in the Agriculture Risk Coverage (ARC) and Price Loss Coverage (PLC) programs for 2014 and 2015. The enrollment period began June 17, and will end Sept. 30.

“The extensive outreach campaign conducted by USDA since the 2014 Farm Bill was enacted, along with extending deadlines, is central to achieving an expected high level of participation,” said Vilsack. “We worked with universities to simplify these complex programs by providing online tools so producers could explore how program election options would affect their operation in different market conditions; these tools were presented to almost 3,000 organizations across the country. The Farm Service Agency also sent more than five million educational notices to producers nationwide and participated in over 4,880 educational events with more than 447,000 attendees. I am proud of the many committed USDA employees who worked hard over the last several months to provide producers support to help them make these important decisions.”

The new programs, established by the 2014 Farm Bill, trigger financial protections for agricultural producers when market forces cause substantial drops in crop prices or revenues. More than 1.76 million farmers have elected ARC or PLC. Previously, 1.7 million producers had enrolled to receive direct payments (the program replaced with ARC and PLC by the 2014 Farm Bill). This means more farms have elected ARC or PLC than previously enrolled under previously administered programs.

Nationwide, 96 percent of soybean farms, 91 percent of corn farms, and 66 percent of wheat farms elected ARC. 99 percent of long grain rice farms, 99 percent of peanut farms, and 94 percent of medium grain rice farms elected PLC. For data about other crops and state-by-state program election results go to www.fsa.usda.gov/arc-plc.

Covered commodities under ARC and PLC include barley, canola, large and small chickpeas, corn, crambe, flaxseed, grain sorghum, lentils, mustard seed, oats, peanuts, dry peas, rapeseed, long grain rice, medium grain rice (which includes short grain and sweet rice), safflower seed, sesame, soybeans, sunflower seed and wheat. Upland cotton is no longer a covered commodity.

Happy animal-kingdom Father’s Day!

With Father’s Day on June 21, I thought it only right to shed some light on amazing animal fathers.

Many people have already heard about how the male seahorses give birth to their babies and how Emperor penguins keep their eggs warm for two months during the freezing Antarctic winter while the mom goes out for food.

But there are many wonderful fathers in the animal kingdom and most of them you have probably never heard about before.

The lump sucker is a fish that uses his special fins to essentially suction himself to his nest and watch over his eggs until they hatch, scaring off potential predators.

The hardhead catfish is a paternal mouthbrooder. This means that the fish carries his eggs in his mouth until they hatch. During the two month period that he has eggs in his mouth, he does not eat.

Amanda’s animal fact of the Week:
Male giant water bugs allow females to lay all of their eggs on the males’ wings. The males then carry them around on their back until they hatch.

Rheas are large flightless birds that look similar to an ostrich. They are by no means monogamous animals and actually take several mates every year, however they do make fantastic dads. The male rhea is in charge of making the nest and is also in charge of incubating the eggs and raising its young for about six months by himself after the eggs hatch.

Male African bullfrogs keep a close eye on and defend their eggs before they hatch, which usually takes about two days. The male will then watch the tadpoles for about three weeks until they metamorphose. If the water level in their shallow pool of water begins to run low, the male will dig a ditch between his pool of water and a bigger pool of water to get more water for his tadpoles. The male African bullfrog, like other animal-kingdom dads, is not perfect – he will consume some of the tadpoles while he is watching over them.

Even though many animal species leave the child caring and rearing duties to the females, it’s nice to know that there are so many outstanding animal fathers out there.

It’s surprising to me that so many of them are not mammals, but amphibians and fish.

Watts named American Physical Therapy Association National Student of the Year

A recent graduate of the Somerset Community College (SCC) Physical Therapist Assistant Program has been named the recipient of the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA) National Physical Therapist Assistant Student of the Year Award for 2015. Courtney Carpenter Watts of Kings Mountain received the award at the APTA NEXT Conference in National Harbor, Maryland on June 5.

The criteria for the award include academic and clinical performance, community service and contributions to the physical therapy profession. The nomination for Watts was supported by faculty members Ron Meade, Steve Hammons and Claudette Prather, and by Brandy Cotton, PTA, of Lakewood Ranch, Florida.

Watts has been highly visible on SCC's campus and in her community. She served as president of SCC's chapter of Phi Theta Kappa International Honorary and was named Kentucky's New Century Scholar in 2014, recognizing her as the state's top community college student. She was a member of the 2014 KCTCS All-Academic Team, was selected to serve as a Forward in the Fifth Student Delegate and received a leadership award from SCC.

In addition, Watts has been active within the American Physical Therapy Association. She is a member of the Orthopaedic and Research Sections and is a member of the Academy of Geriatric Physical Therapy. She has co-authored educational brochures related to geriatric concerns and has attended several national conferences. She was named to the 2014 Kentucky Physical Therapy Association's All-Academic Team. In addition, she had previously been awarded the APTA's top student honor as the recipient of the Mary McMillan Scholarship Award.

Watts graduated from the SCC PTA Program in May. She is married to Brad Watts and is the daughter of Scotty and Dana Southerland of Danville. She presently works at Danville Physical Therapy in Danville.

This is the ninth year in a row that an SCC student has won the award. SCC graduates who have won the award in the past include: Briana Allen of Monticello in 2014; Debbie Lasure of Stanford in 2013; Melissa Keith of Columbia in 2012; Erin Green of Danville in 2011; Valarie Cooper of Jamestown in 2010; Rod Edwards of Somerset in 2009; Bethany Gosser of Liberty in 2008; and Heather Tuel of Somerset in 2007.

Courtney Laine Watts of Kings Mountain is the American Physical Therapy Association's National PTA Student of the Year for 2015. She received the award at the APTA NEXT Conference in National Harbor, Maryland on June 5. She is seen here with APTA Student Assembly president Fred Gilbert, who made the award presentation.

For more information about the SCC PTA Program, please contact the director of the program at ron.meade@kctcs.edu.
